DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 7/21/06 has been entered.

Response to Amendment

An amendment was filed with the RCE amending claim 27. Claims 27-30 remain pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 27-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lynn et al. (6,422,397) in view of Lin et al. (6,566,046).

Lynn et al. (hereafter Lynn) discloses a closed blood collection system that may be used to centrifuge whole blood into its components. The system included multiple (four) containers that are sized and configured to hold whole blood, platelets, and plasma. The containers are integrally coupled to one another by flexible tubing and an in-line filter (20) is connected to the system to remove leukocytes. The system further has a bypass line (62) that extends or branches around the filter. Within the bypass line, a one-way valve (64) is provided. See figure 9 and detailed description.

Lynn discloses the invention substantially as claimed, however, fails to disclose specifically that a platelet additive mixture is held within the auxiliary container comprising an aqueous solution comprising sodium chloride, sodium citrate, sodium acetate, and sodium phosphate for conditioning the platelet concentrate for pathogen inactivation.

Lin et al. (hereafter Lin) discloses a synthetic platelet storage, or additive, aqueous solution of sodium chloride, sodium citrate, sodium acetate, and sodium phosphate. As shown in figure 9B, the solution is held in a bag or container that is part of a whole blood separation system. The solution is used with the photo decontamination of platelets. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to select the platelet additive taught by Lin for use in the container system of Lynn for mixing the platelets collected within the container for subsequent storage or transfusion, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416. With respect to the added limitation of the additive solution being contained in the auxiliary container “in an at least amount sufficient” for mixing the platelet concentration and plasma to “achieve a predetermined ratio of additive solution and plasma and provide” the mixture “conditioned for a pathogen inactivation treatment” this limitation is considered to be an obvious variation of the concentration. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to choose to have an amount of additive of an amount to achieve a predetermined ratio, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980). Further, the limitation with respect to conditioning for pathogen inactivation treatment is a recitation of the intended use of the device.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 27-30 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
